There is a story that goes with these stones:
 In 1994 I found this cemetery after about 2 years search, there were no markers in place. I asked Mrs. Locke owner of the property where the graves were. In her vegetable garden she stated and she showed me the approximate location. I told me that the man who plowed her garden got tired of hitting the stones, took them up and threwed them over the fence into the cow pasture. I found them mostly covered with dirt, briars, small bushes & whatever, after a hours work I got to them, another hours work I had them out. they were broken half into. Picking them off best I could & placing them together I could read all word & numbers. Some weeks later my son Ed & I went back & took the stones to a car wash & cleaned them & repaired best we could. Mrs. Locke showed us where to set them.
 I believe there are at least 5 more graves there. I believe Samuel & Amanda (Lee) Webb - Mrs. & Mr. John Lee & a 13 year old girl, a granddaughter of the Lee's. My plan is to verify this as soon as I can. Then build a fence around the grave yard. Reason for this - TN. law concerning grave-yards are that if not taken care of, they can be destroyed.
